

The unConsciousness of Color

Light is the foundation of quantum mechanics, "the New Physics." The renowned physicist David Bohm summed this up in the phrase, "all matter is frozen light." Life is actually light energy that only appears solid because of an illusion created by the mind. When we look into matter, we find it composed of molecules and atoms, which in turn are composed of protons, neutrons and electrons. Virtually everything our that senses perceive are elaborate structures of matter and their binding electromagnetic fields.

The artificial separations that we have made between "science, healthcare," and "spirituality" also seem to be melting-and Light is the point of convergence. The rainbow of colors - Light has now become a central focus of science, healing, spirituality and consciousness studies.

The transformative power of light is founded on a simple principle: life and light are the same energy, in two states of existence: Form and Formlessness.

Each color of the light spectrum corresponds vibrationally with some aspect of our life experience. Each frequency of life is the vibrational equivalent of its formless frequency of light. Just as we find some experiences easy and others uncomfortable, some frequencies of light (colors) feel easy to observe, while others feel uncomfortable. Because of this discomfort, we have all selectively diminished our ability to receive the full spectrum of light, and thus the full range of our life experience. This diminishes the flow of our life force and our body's innate healing process-and thus our full capacity to experience health and happiness. Our bodies absorb light, they are living photocells that are stimulated and regulated by light.

Our work is not focused on diagnosis and treatment, rather on how we can re-educate ourselves to become more receptive to light, thus more receptive to life. As the aspects of our life that used to be uncomfortable become comfortable, it is like becoming free of an old allergy and its accompanying physiological and emotional stresses that come with an allergic reaction. As a result, our mind will find peace, the flow of our life force will be enhanced our innate self-healing ability will spontaneously resume its natural function and our entire life will be transformed as we begin to live more and more in the present.

Everything distills down to mastering the art of living. For many, this mastery develops from expanding our receptivity to life, so that the aspects of life that used to catalyze stress, now fuel our inspiration. In this way, our life once again becomes a womb of joy and wellness-heaven on earth. Since light and life are essentially the same energy, becoming more receptive to light automatically expands our relationship with life.

Through its use, the Spectral Receptivity System provides a means by which you, the viewer, can recognize the aspects of the visible spectrum of light (life) that you are unreceptive to, and a systematic approach to expanding and balancing this receptivity while developing a high degree of "present time awareness." As a result, you begin to open up, the mind quiets, creativity and awareness expand, and we begin to live life at our maximum potential.